Concerning His Life and Career-A Frank, Straight-Forward and Manly Letter.

In a manly letter, Ex-Senator Lewis Emery, Jr., Democratic and Lincoln Republican candidate for Governor, has replied to his critics, who, by personal attack and insult, sought to prevent his indorsement for Governor by the Prohibitionists.

Mr. Emery's reply was in the form of a letter written to W. M. Likins, and combines, whould read a felter written to W. M. Likins, and combines who would read a felter written to W. M. Ex-Senator Emery, in his letter to Mr. Likins, defines the life he leads and has led during his sixty-six years. He declares that neither he nor any of his family are total abstainers, nor drunkards, nor even moderate drinkers. He admits that he keeps liquor on his sideboard and on his table for his family and friends if they desire it.

Mr. Emery does not mince words in tracing the source of the attack upon his character.
